What is Legislative Oversight?

The “eyes and voice” of the people

“It is the proper duty of a representative body to look diligently into every affair of government and to talk much about what it sees. It is meant to be the eyes and the voice, and to embody the wisdom and will of its constituents.”

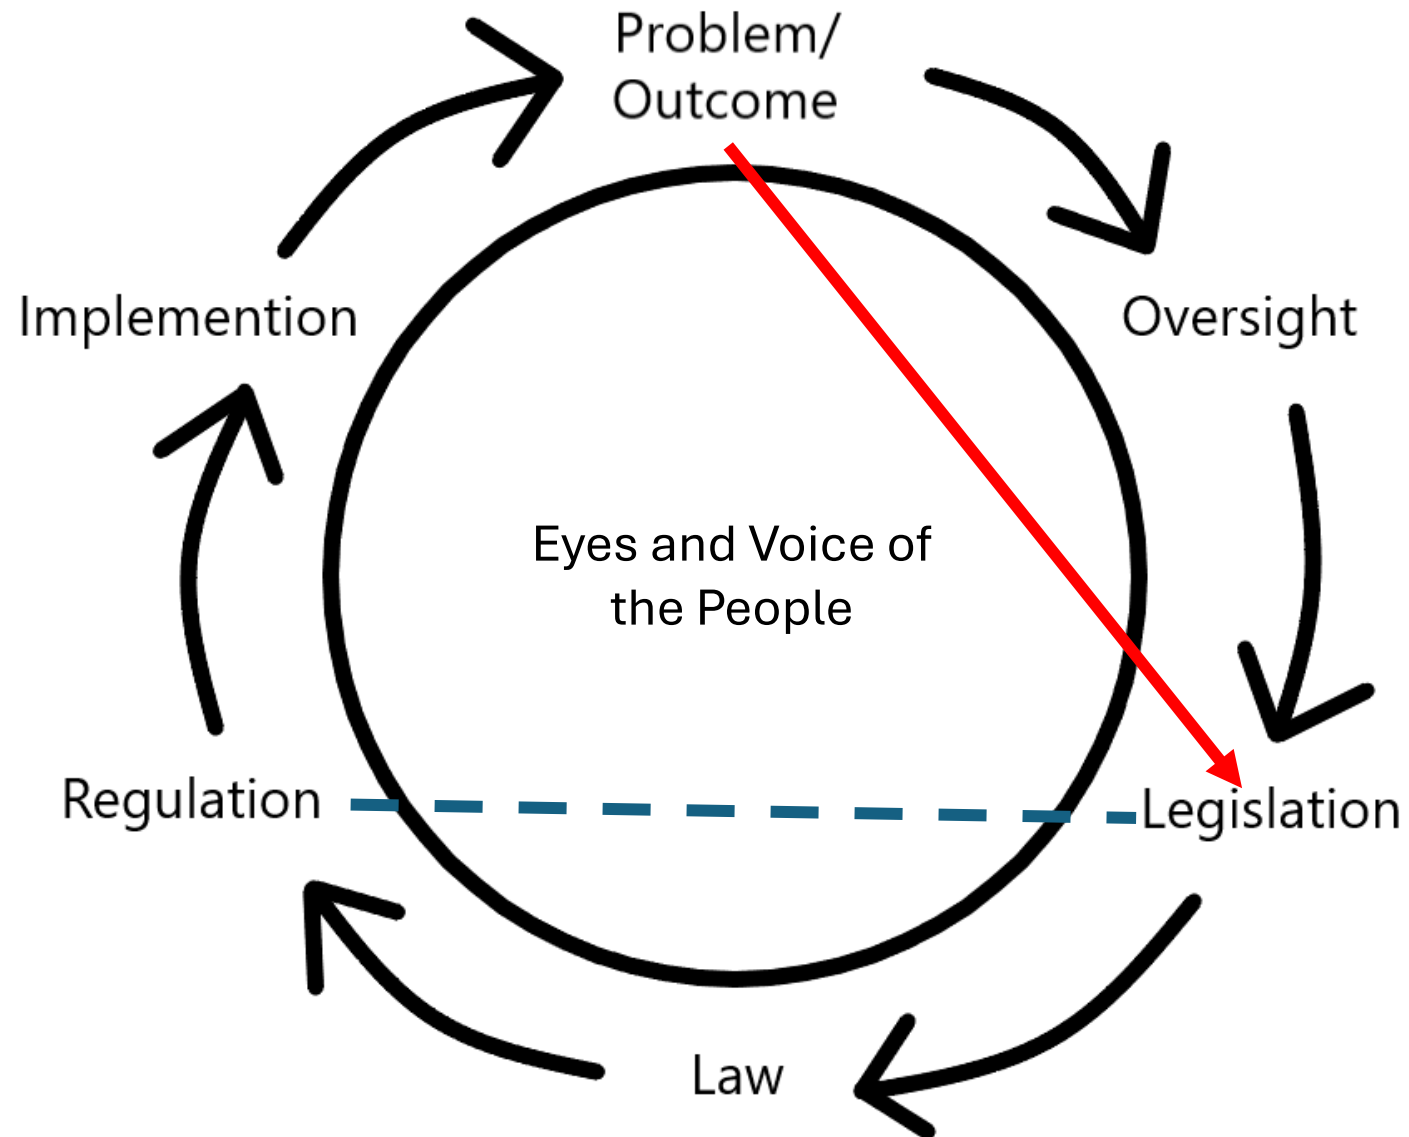

-- United States Supreme Court¹

Tools for using data to drive decision-making

The CSG Justice Center and The US Department of Justice Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) are working to address challenges experienced by criminal justice agencies when they try to use data to tell the story of their work to decisionmakers.

NEW OPPORTUNITIES

Justice Counts

The Virtual Academy for Corrections Analysts

Resident Corrections
Analysts Initiative

Justice
Center

The Virtual Academy for Corrections Analysts (VACA) will define standards and build data literacy and analytic capabilities of DOCs nationwide to further data-informed planning and decision-making.

How does the Academy work?

DOCs will be able to access the program's self-paced learning materials and core competency standards, communities of practice, peer-to-peer networks, and technical assistance at no cost.

How can I get involved?

If you have questions or would like to provide feedback on the types of curriculum and materials that The Council of State Governments (CSG) Justice Center should develop, please reach us at vaca@csg.org.

Justice
Center

The Resident Corrections Analysts (RCA) Initiative

embeds analysts at state DOCs to help agencies build out their data infrastructure and more fully integrate the use of data analysis practices, tools, and reporting into their daily operations and management.

27 state agencies applied for placement in 2023

4 analysts will be embedded

Placements will last up to one year

Justice
Center

Justice Counts was founded to address longstanding challenges policymakers face when crafting criminal justice policy:

- Very little timely criminal justice data is made available to the public.
- Policymakers lack even basic data on criminal justice dynamics to inform their decisions.
- Those decisions have lasting effects in communities on everything from public safety to disparate impacts.

Justice Counts is a new kind of solution that aims to have EVERY criminal justice agency in the country share a common set of data, creating the first, complete picture of the criminal legal system in the United States.

Many factors can lead to a complaint, grievance, or appeal that are not related to fairness. The existence of these processes reflects a functioning system.*

Criminal justice agencies across 25 states and one territory are part of Justice Counts.

-  Some sites requested intensive technical assistance to implement Justice Counts.
-  Some sites received grants from BJA and technical assistance from the Justice Counts coalition to assist in their implementation efforts.
-  Some individual agencies choose to participate outside of a larger Justice Counts campaign.

Sites are taking different approaches in their paths to implementation.

Local effort leads the way.

The CSG Justice Center begins working with a local coalition or commission and shares local successes with other areas of the state, spurring growth in interest that pave the way for statewide implementation.

Statewide entity leads the way.

The CSG Justice Center begins working with a statewide coalition or commission (e.g., State Administering Agency) and leverages existing data sharing and governance relationships to bring implementation to the local level. Even when data is collected by these umbrella agencies, local support is needed for data on metrics like funding, expenses, and staff.

Justice Counts in action in Franklin County, Ohio

Ohio is an example of a grassroots implementation approach that started in Franklin County and then expanded statewide.

The Franklin County Criminal Justice Planning Board signed on to Justice Counts to connect data across their local criminal justice system.

10

71%

24 agencies are sharing data

Across those six sectors county agencies are sharing data with the Justice Counts Community

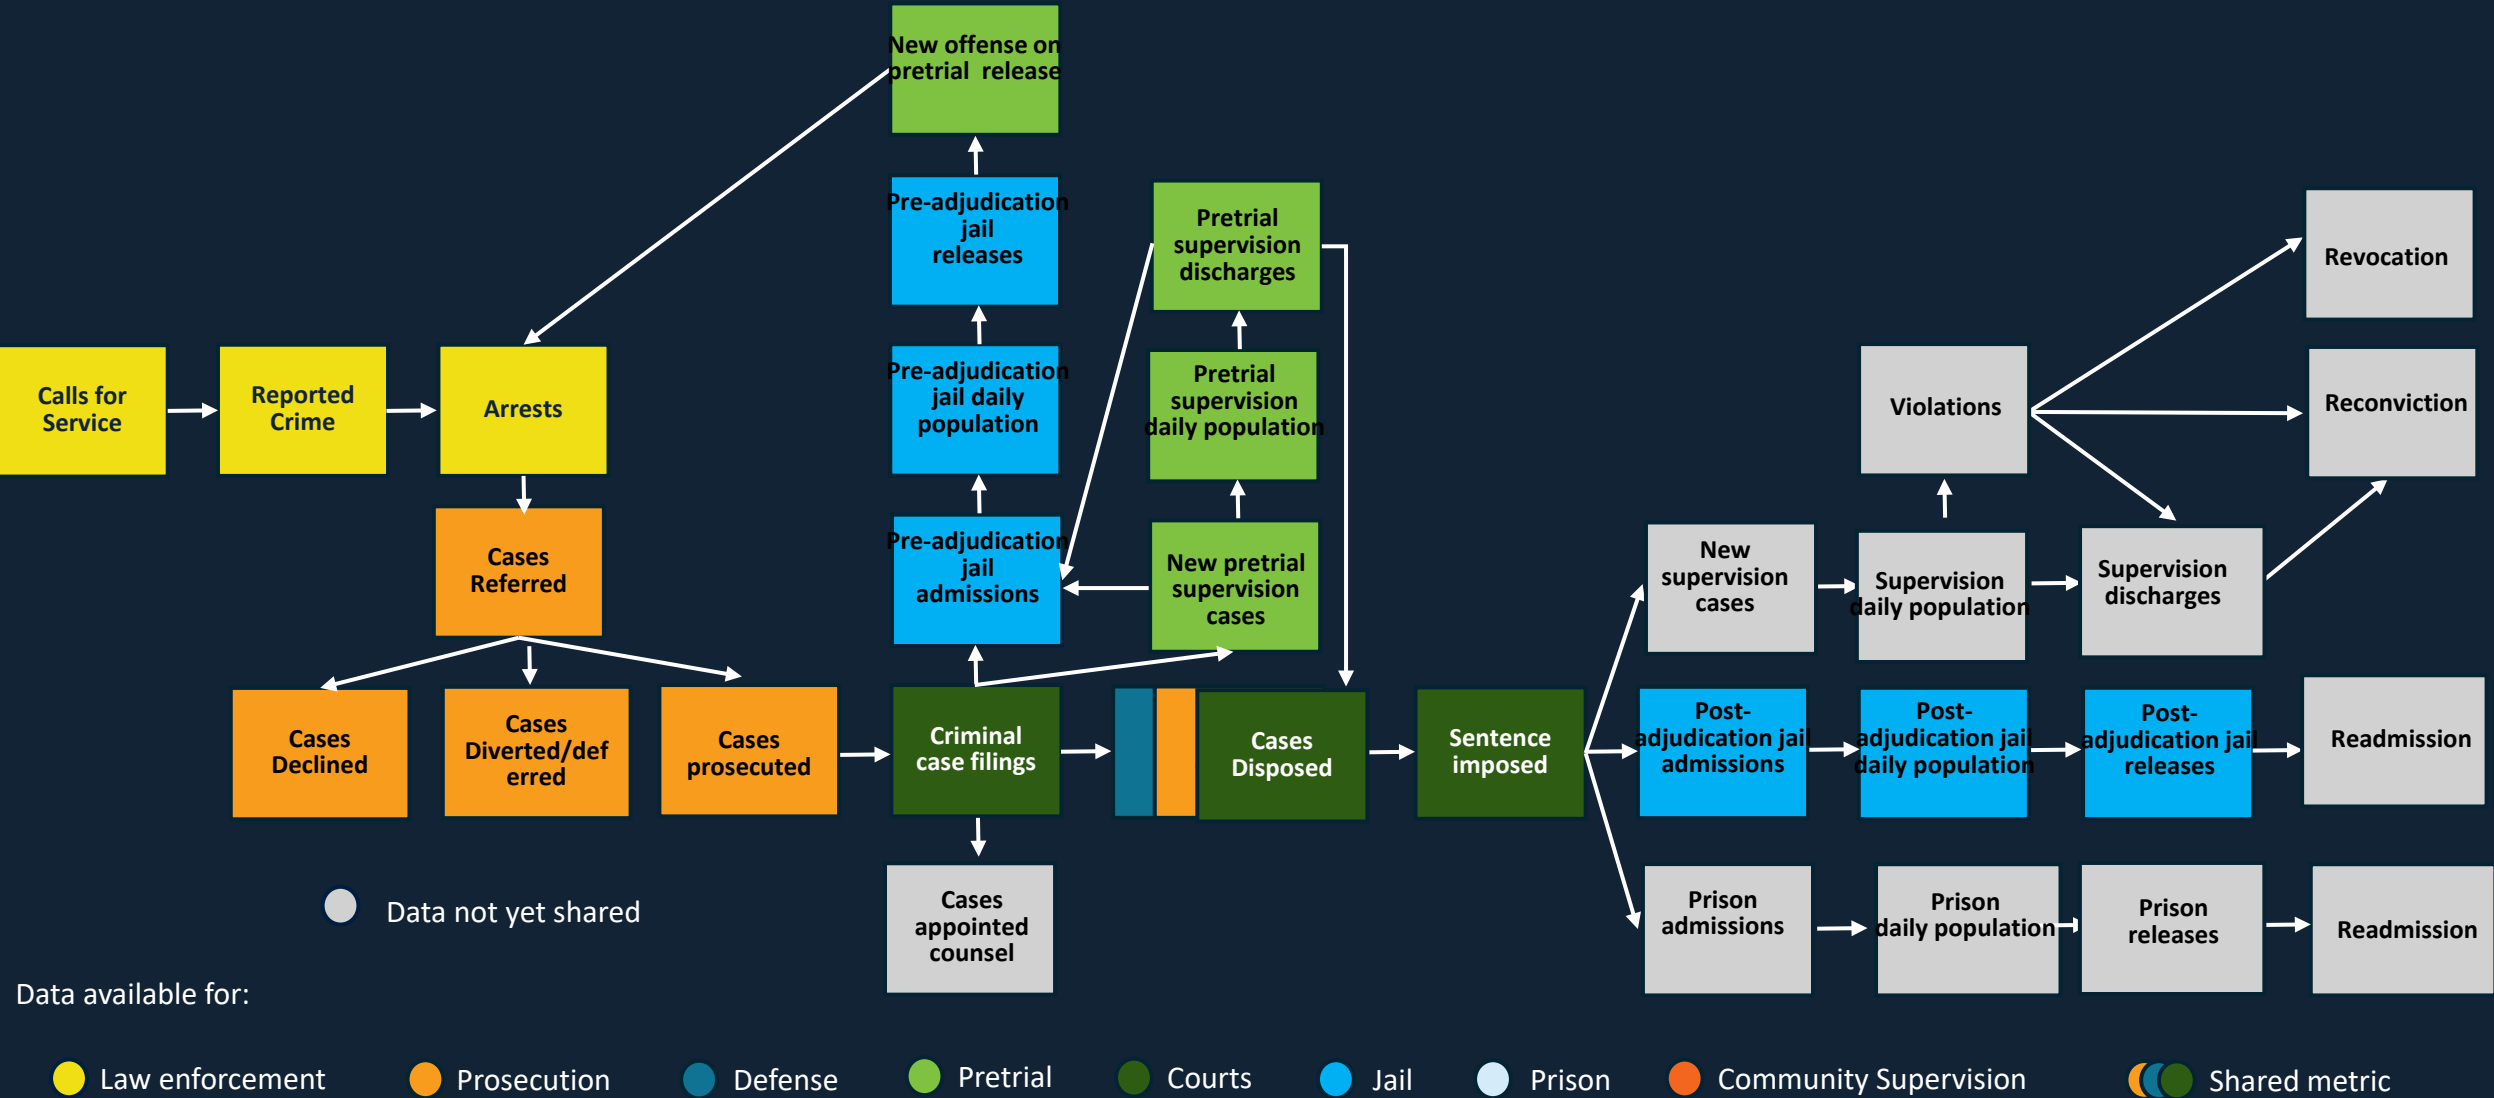

12 law enforcement and jail agencies

Half of the agencies sharing data in Ohio are either law enforcement or jail.

Justice Center

Franklin County agencies are sharing data for 22 metrics across six sectors.

BETTER DATA.

BETTER DECISIONS.

Justice Counts helps agencies transform data they already have into dynamic visualizations in just a few hours.
